GOLD HILL, NEVADA,
Thursday Evening.....Nov. 25, 1869

STEWART, though he is called A. T., is only 67.

FATHER HYACINTHE is in Boston, the guest of Robert C. Winthrop.

"THE BUZZARDS' ROOST" is the name of a whisky shop in Dixon, Solano County, Cal. It may be very appropriate.

"ACROSS the continent," traveling by rail, is on the decrease, but those coming west far exceed in number those going east.

TRYING to do business without advertising, is like winking at a pretty girl through a pair of green goggles. You may know that you are doing it, but nobody else does.

HOT.—The mercury in the thermometer was up to 94, in the shade, at Los Angeles, on Saturday last. It was quite warm that day and for several days at San Francisco and down the coast.

THE fruit crop in the Santa Clara Valley is immense. Tons upon tons of the choicest apples, etc., are annually allowed to rot in the orchards for the want of a market in which to sell them.

A MAN in Waldoboro, Maine, zealously cares for a hatchet which, in the hands of a stalwart Indian in 1749, was driven into his grandfather's skull. It must be a pleasant thing to have in the family.

ONE of the largest and best hotels in New York is soon to be erected at the Central Park, for Coleman & Stetson, of the Astor House. As a family hotel, it is intended to eclipse everything on this continent.

MISS JENNIE WORRELL, the youngest of the Worrell Sisters, of theatrical fame, was married to Mr. James H. Barre, in New York city, on Monday, November 7th. Mr. B. is a broker in Wall street, and is a gentleman of wealth and respectability.

LIEBIG says that science has demonstrated that man is formed of condensed air; that he lives on condensed as well as uncondensed air, and clothes himself in condensed air; that he prepares his food by means of condensed air, and by means of the same agent moves the heaviest weights with the velocity of the wind; in fact, that wind is man and man is wind.

THE Marysville Appeal says that some weeks since T. J. McCormack sent a box of quinces to a friend living at Cincinnati, and a few days ago Mr. McC. received the following acknowledgment: "The box of quinces came to hand last Friday, but the delay caused some of them to rot. Their size was a perfect wonderment. Never in this climate and region do they grow near as large."

IT seems that the telegraph was in error in stating that Mr. Jefferson Davis had determined to shake the dust of this ungrateful country from his feet, and take up his residence for the future in London. Mr. Davis, on the contrary, has come to the conclusion to submit himself to the "scum of creation," and has gone into the insurance business in Memphis, surrounded by free negroes and abolition cutthroats.

THE Elko Independent says that town has forty-one stores, thirty-eight saloons, twenty-two restaurants, thirteen lodging houses, six bakeries, eight blacksmith and wagon shops, and five livery stables. It was laid out on the 29th of December last, and the first lot was sold on the 12th day of January of this year. There are 1,000 buildings and upward of 3,000 people within an area of four miles from the new Court House.

A FEW days ago the Pope visited a tobacco manufactory in Rome, and was presented by the manager with several thousand of the best cigars. The Holy Father is a great smoker, invariably taking a cigar after every meal. The Catholic world, though it includes nearly all the smoking nations, never considers that cigars can be wanted at the Vatican, and, consequently, these requisites make a poor show in the stream of presents which has poured in upon the Pope.

VALLEJO.—The Solano County Democrat, now published at Suisun, is soon to be removed to Vallejo. Vallejo is a good place to go to, for now it is improving faster than any other city or town in California. That is saying much, but it is true. There are now 1,500 men employed at the Mare Island Navy Yard, and the streets of Vallejo in the evening look like the streets of a great city, if we judge by the throng upon them. Everybody seems to be building there, and the houses and stores are all of a neat and substantial character.

THE discovery has just been made in New York that where two persons are capable and willing to enter into a contract embodying a proper consideration, and then actually do enter upon it, the contract is binding. This is a common law principle, and why it should not have been known in the Empire State long before this we can only infer. Judge Barnard was driven to apply the doctrine to the case of marriage by the villainous confidence of a respondent in a divorce suit. He blandly acknowledged the statement to the petitioner, "you are my wife," her consent thereto, the placing of a ring on her finger, future cohabitation and even offspring. At last a case was found which called for justice. The desertion was confessed with the other crimes, and it was conceded that the show of marriage was for the purpose of seduction. The Judge held that the marriage contract was complete—as complete as though a priest or alderman had been present to solemnize it.

RELICS.

Popular faith in the authenticity of the relics of General George Washington received a severe shock when a cunning forger, recently, declared that the alleged autograph letters of the Father of his Country, preserved in Independence Hall, are clever frauds, the handiwork of the confessing criminal. If these documents, endorsed and placed in that sacred room by sagacious antiquaries, are proved to be false, and all the wondering curiosity with which they have been examined is shown to have been wasted, in what can we place confidence? We receive this forger's explanation with such sorrowful indignation as might have been experienced by devout Neapolitans when they learned that St. Gennaro's bottled blood is merely soft soap and logwood; or with that regretful disappointment which was felt by the man who, having cherished for years what he thought was the skull of St. Peter when he was a child, one morning was undeceived by some practical person who showed him the impossibility of such a thing. We begin now to doubt the genuine character of all the revolutionary relics in and out of Independence Hall. Who can prove that Washington ever sat in that fragment of a pew? The pattern of his trousers is not indelibly impressed upon the varnish; and in removing it from the church the ruthless sexton may have made a mistake and got hold of the slip in which some plebeian Christian slept on Sundays. Indeed, we do not know that this ever was a pew at all. It may be a white pine falsehood—a lie embodied in boards and red paint. That dinner plate, too, upon which the illustrious chieftain carved his beef, and mingled the snowy potato with the essential gravy, who can tell whether its stony floor really grated beneath the General's incisive knife, or whether its cerulean edge, beautiful with Celestial scenery, ever sustained his butter pat, or whether the plate itself was ever uplifted in those giant fingers with a demand for "more?" It may be but the pie-plate of a degraded baker, or a scullion's vessel devoted to feeding some unheroic cat. Shall we place greater faith in the portraits of this man? We have daily proofs of the unreliability of such things. We see how the papers keep on hand a single gloomy wood cut, and whenever a great man dies or is elected or is hung, plunge it into the forms and call it Probst, or Andrew Johnson, or Heenan, or Prince Arthur, or Franklin Pierce, or Byron at nineteen, or Anna Dickinson, until the subscribers know every line in that old wood cut by heart, and wonder in their souls how it happens that so many different people have such a strong family likeness. Why may not the popular idea of Washington have sprung from some such practice? or why may not some artist have drawn a fancy sketch and called it Washington, and passed it on to posterity as genuine? We expect now to have a discovery made of a written confession by Stuart that he never saw the Father of his Country, but painted his portrait from his ideal. Who shall swear to the breeches in the Patent office, and prove that they were not worn by some impecunious private soldier in the Revolutionary army, and by him hypothecated for a consideration in beer; or what guarantee have we that the green-hilted sword, alleged to be Washington's, did not dangle by the side of some quartermaster, and serve as a divider of Pork and a slicer up of brown bread? We are beginning to doubt the genuineness of all these things, and we want some fresh proof of their asserted character before we will admire, and venerate, and become enthusiastic over them. We doubt the very bell itself, for we know its history to have been clouded with fable by at least one man who professed to be a historian; we question the cannon balls, we suspect that original copy of the Declaration of Independence; we think it likely that the fragment of Charter Oak may be a mere back log from a New Jersey wood-pile; we regard Roger Sherman's letter with incredulity; we have only partial confidence in John Hancock's chair; we are even weak of faith about the Hall itself, when we find that whole generations of patriotic people can be imposed upon by a skillful penman, and induced to worship manuscript scrawled out by him in a garret, in the very middle of the nineteenth century. We are sorry this wretched villain turned up. We enjoyed the fraud and believed in it; why could he not permit us to remain in ignorance and maintain an unshaken faith in all these things? We found no fault when William Tell was proved to be a myth; we gave up our belief in the Seven Sleepers without a sigh; we heard without a pang that Saint George was merely a fraudulent army contractor, who sold spoiled hams to the troops at Constantinople; we gave up the story of St. Patrick's anti-reptile operations with little regret; we even parted willingly with our faith in John Smith and Pocahontas, and accepted the statement that the Indian princess used to throw handsprings around the Jamestown fort; but we did think the legends of Independence Hall authentic and invulnerable, and the relics preserved therein genuine. Now, even this faith is broken, and by a miserable wretch who admits his fitness for the State prison. Is it any wonder that the age grows skeptical? After a while we will begin to question the reality of the events of our own lives, and to doubt the fact of our own existence.

IT is reported that the cholera is raging with severity at the city of Kiev, in Russia. This city is on the Dnieper, one of the rivers of the Black Sea, up which, in 1831-2, the Asiatic pestilence marched toward the Baltic, thence to the British Islands, and then across the Atlantic to Quebec and New York. Perhaps the dreaded monster of Hindostan may be again progressing through Russia on a similar raid. If vigilantly watched, however, his march may be checked.

Overland Dispatches

[SPECIAL TO THE GOLD HILL DAILY NEWS BY THE WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH LINE.]

National Woman's Suffrage Convention.

CLEVELAND, November 23.—The city is full of strangers, come to attend the National Woman's Suffrage Convention, which meets here to-morrow. Many prominent women's rights advocates are present, and lively times are anticipated between Lucy Stone and Miss Anthony and their respective adherents in regard to a national organization, the latter claiming it was already completed in New York last spring, and the former denying it.

A large number of editors are here to attend the meeting of the Western Press Association to-morrow.

The Red River Insurrection.

TORONTO, November 22.—A special from St. Paul to the Globe says simultaneously with the expulsion of Governor McDougall, another band of French insurgents took possession of Fort Garry without obstruction. The Fort is now occupied by the Provisional Governor, John Brouse.

Governor McLavish is dangerously ill.

The Hudson Bay Company do not organize to support McDougall.

Letters of the 6th instant report all quiet and no interruption of business. One hundred men, sworn to resist the Canadian authorities, calling themselves "Liberators," are in arms.

Letters from Fort Garry represent the insurgents as having the support of Scotch and English settlers in a greater degree than was expected. The American residents are represented to be neutral. Governor McDougall is still at Pembina. Mr. Provencher is said to be in favor of returning to Canada, to which the Governor will not consent.

From New York.

NEW YORK, November 21.—United States District Attorney Pierrepont received instructions yesterday to proceed against the Spanish gunboats, now almost ready to sail, for breach of the neutrality laws. The order of the District Court was obtained for their seizure on the grounds preferred by the Government, that these vessels are to be used by the foreign State of Spain to cruise and commit hostilities against the citizens and property of the colony or people of Cuba, with which the United States are at peace. This being urged by the legal representatives of the Government under the direction of the Administration, is fitly called quasi-recognition of the Cubans as belligerents, for in it lies embodied the idea that for the purposes of our neutrality laws, Spain and the people of Cuba are two distinct communities, and neither must trample upon the rights of the other while enjoying the hospitality of the United States. The main ground of their seizure, however, is, that they are intended to be used against a foreign State with whom the United States is at peace, to-wit: The republic of Peru. The recent demand by the Spanish Minister for their release was refused by Government.

A special from Washington asserts that the American squadron in the West Indian waters has been augmented, specially in view of contingencies that may arise in consequence of the action of the United States in this matter of the Spanish gunboats.

It is stated that Secretary Boutwell denies having taken any steps, or even harboring the idea of resumption of specie payment at present, considering it useless to be troubling about specie payment until the time comes when such a thing will be feasible.

REPORTERS IN ENGLAND.

The British Parliament does not officially recognize the existence of the reporters of the public press, although there are reporters' galleries with retiring rooms and other conveniences, attached to the chambers both of the Lords and Commons. After a long struggle the right of the public to obtain, at the earliest moment, a full account of the proceedings of the Legislature, has been tacitly, though not formally, admitted, and yet, should a member bring to the attention of the Speaker the fact that "strangers" were in the gallery, the House would be immediately cleared of all persons, whether reporters or visitors. In the early part of this century no occurrence was more common than that of a member rising and saying, "I observe, Mr. Speaker, that there are strangers in the gallery," and a strong proof of the great change that has been produced in the manners and customs of the age is to be found in the incident that a member of the House of Commons recently called the attention of the Speaker to the fact that reporters were not present. The circumstances were as follows: The House of Commons, at four o'clock in the afternoon, having been in session for twelve hours, was called upon by the Government to consider three orders of the day remaining undisposed of, to-wit: the Public Works, Drainage and Improvement of Land, and the Nitro-Glycerine bill. The ministerial agent insisted that the House should go into committee on these measures, which would prolong the session for an hour longer. The reporters being fagged out, withdrew at once, in a body, their presence being unnecessary, as the bills probably had merely to be read over by the clerks. The absence of the reporters was then intimated to the Speaker, with the suggestion that their conduct almost amounted to a breach of privilege, inasmuch as they were the only link between the members and the public. The Speaker thereupon replied, with assumed gravity, that as the House of Commons did not pay the reporters it had no control over their services, and added that these gentlemen had a decided advantage over himself, since, at the end of a twelve hours' sitting, they could withdraw, but that he must remain to the end of the daily session. The effect of the reporters absenting themselves was to postpone the business in hand, the House adjourning very soon after the discovery of the departure of the weary "press gang" was made. A more remarkable illustration of the power of and respect for the press has never been given, at least in England.

A LIVING HEADLESS CHILD.—The Deposit (N. Y.) Courier is responsible for the following marvelous story: In the vicinity of Spoon River, Ill., is a child that was born and lived five years without a head. Mrs.——, the mother, is the widow of a soldier formerly living in Marshall County, who enlisted in the 65th or Scotch regiment, and was killed in the battle of Lexington, Mo. She was standing beside her husband during the engagement, when a canon ball carried his head completely away, his body falling into her arms and covering her with blood. The shock affected her greatly. When her child was born there was not a semblance of a head about it. The limbs are perfectly developed, and the shoulders where the head and neck should be is smoothly rounded off. But the most surprising thing of all is that the face is situated in the breast. Of course there being no neck, the power of its turning its head is wanting, except as the whole body is moved; but this difficulty is overcome by the singular faculty it possesses of turning its eyes in their sockets, enabling it to see quite as well on either side as those more perfectly framed. The upper portion of its body is white as the purest Caucassian; from the waist downward it is blood red. The strange creature, now an active boy of five years old, as if to compensate for his deformity, possesses the most clear and bird-like tones ever listened to, singing with singular correctness everything it may hear, and its voice at this early age accomplishes two octaves easily.

THERE are in man five hundred and twenty-seven muscles, two hundred and fifty-seven of which are in pairs. Of these, no less than one hundred are constantly used in the simple act of breathing.

LATEST TELEGRAMS

FROM SACRAMENTO.

No Eastern News of Importance—Railroad Matters—Weather.

SACRAMENTO, November 25.—There is nothing of interest in the Eastern dispatches of this morning.

The workmen of the California Pacific Railroad commenced yesterday filling in Sutter Slough for their road bed and depot grounds.

The Pullman through express train arrived from San Francisco on time yesterday afternoon, and left for the East about 1 o'clock.

The Western Pacific express train was delayed again yesterday afternoon, not getting in until 3 o'clock. The delay is attributed to the difficulty experienced in making steam, but the cause probably lies somewhere else.

A freight train on the Western Pacific road yesterday forenoon brought two disabled locomotives to the city. One of them was the Lark, which was ditched at San Leandro last Monday; the other was the Young America, a handsome and new one, just set up at the round house.

A heavy north wind has prevailed since yesterday, rendering the weather quite cold and disagreeable.

FROM ELKO.

New Mill for Mineral Hill—Big Assay and Fine Specimen from Cope District—Teaming to Waite Pine Dropping Off—Grand Jury—New Court-room—Snow.

ELKO, November 24.—Charles McWilliams, J. H. Mills and J. C. Frazer have made arrangements with Ward & Co., large owners in the Mineral Hill District, for the erection of a ten stamp mill at that camp, which will be running within thirty days.

The last shipment of ore from the Mountain City mine, Cope District, which was taken from the surface, assayed over three hundred dollars to the ton.

Hill Beachey and George Hearst came in to-night by stage from Cope. Hearst has some fine specimens which he is taking to San Francisco.

The snow storm has lessened the shipment of freight to White Pine. The large freighters are preparing their outfits for the winter roads, while the smaller ones and ox teams are drawing off.

The Grand Jury will be full to-morrow and will go to work immediately. Several important criminal cases are set for trial during the term.

The Court-room in the new Court-house will be ready for occupancy next week.

Considerable snow is reported on the Cope and White Pine roads. Very little has fallen in this valley.

WOMAN.

While Adam slept, God from him took
A bone; and, as an omen,
He made it like a seraph look,
And thus created woman.

He took this bone not from his pate,
To show her power more ample;
Nor from his feet to designate
That he on her might trample.

But 'neath his arm, to clearly show
He always should protect her;
And near his heart to let him know
How much he should respect her.

He took this bone, crooked enough,
Most crooked of the human,
To show him how much crooked stuff
He'd always find in woman.

MENDED ways—Repaired streets.

SELF-advertising Cloaks—Circulars.

HE who laughs at cruelty sets foot on the neck of religion.

THE flea, locust, and grasshoppers jump two hundred times their own length; equal to a quarter of a mile for a man.

SERPENTS annually shed their skins, which, remarkable as it may at first appear, extend over the eyes.

OF one thousand infants fed by the mother's milk, not above three hundred die; but of the same number reared by wet nurses, five hundred die.

CHINA, properly so called, contains about three hundred and fifty millions of souls, and extends over twenty degrees of latitude, and twenty of longitude, or four hundred square degrees.

THE average depth of the Atlantic ocean is set down at 13,400 feet, and that of the Pacific 18,000. On the western side of St. Helena, soundings have been made, it is said, to the depth of 27,000 feet—five miles and a quarter—without touching bottom.

THE young man who has been traveling about, lately, and jumping off the trains to kiss his sister, and then apologizing when he found his mistake, has become converted and will lead a different life. He tried the thing on at New Haven, the other day, and when the damsel raised her veil he found she was so black that charcoal would make a white mark on her.

DR. J. J. McBRIDE'S

KING OF PAIN!

MORE THAN

ONE MILLION BOTTLES

Sold in the last Two Years!

EVERYBODY PLEASED WHO USES IT

RELIEF FOR ALL!

TO THE PUBLIC!

GRATEFUL FOR THE EMINENT SERvices of Dr. J. J. McBride, I cheerfully make statement of the following facts: For twelve months I had suffered from prostration of my nervous system, resulting in partial paralysis and almost total loss of sight. A score of physicians had abandoned my case as hopelessly incurable; I had even heard my days numbered by doctors and friends. In the agonies of neuralgic pain I sought the great "King of Pain." Under that benign influence, in one half hour I had obtained more medical aid than I had known for long, weary months. My sight was so much restored that I could read print, although I had needed a guide to find Dr. McBride's office an hour before. Before leaving him I had regained the use of my almost palsied limbs, and seemingly my strenght had returned; while all those aches and pains, my constant companions, were dissipated and gone. It is now ten days since I undertook treatment with Dr. McBride, and I can say unhesitatingly that I am restored as I could not have expected to have been in so little time. My eyesight is most perfectly regained, my whole physical system corrected, and in undoubted health.

My residence is in Reading. I do business at No. 6½ Cambridge street, in this city, where I will willingly vouch in person for the truth of the foregoing, to any one interested.

THOS. T. GREENWOOD.

P. S. I have done business in this city for twenty years. Thousands of citizens know me. T. T. G.
